

7 Ways Mining Technology Partners Benefit from Integrating with an Open Data Platform

SourceOne®

Eclipse Mining Technologies®

Are you a task-specific technology provider or a strategic technology partner supporting the mine site's enterprise business goals?

The difference between the two is that one operates in a siloed organization and the other as an Integration Partner for the SourceOne® open data industry platform.

How does the SourceOne platform benefit the Integration Partner and mining industry?

1. Increased value of the data their technology generates by sharing, aggregating, and analyzing by multiple users in near real-time

3. Adding, removing or updating technology is streamlined because the platform incorporates and validates the changes and connects it to the secure data all in one process.

5. Supporting a virtual work environment by allowing multi-users to collaborate and communicate through one platform

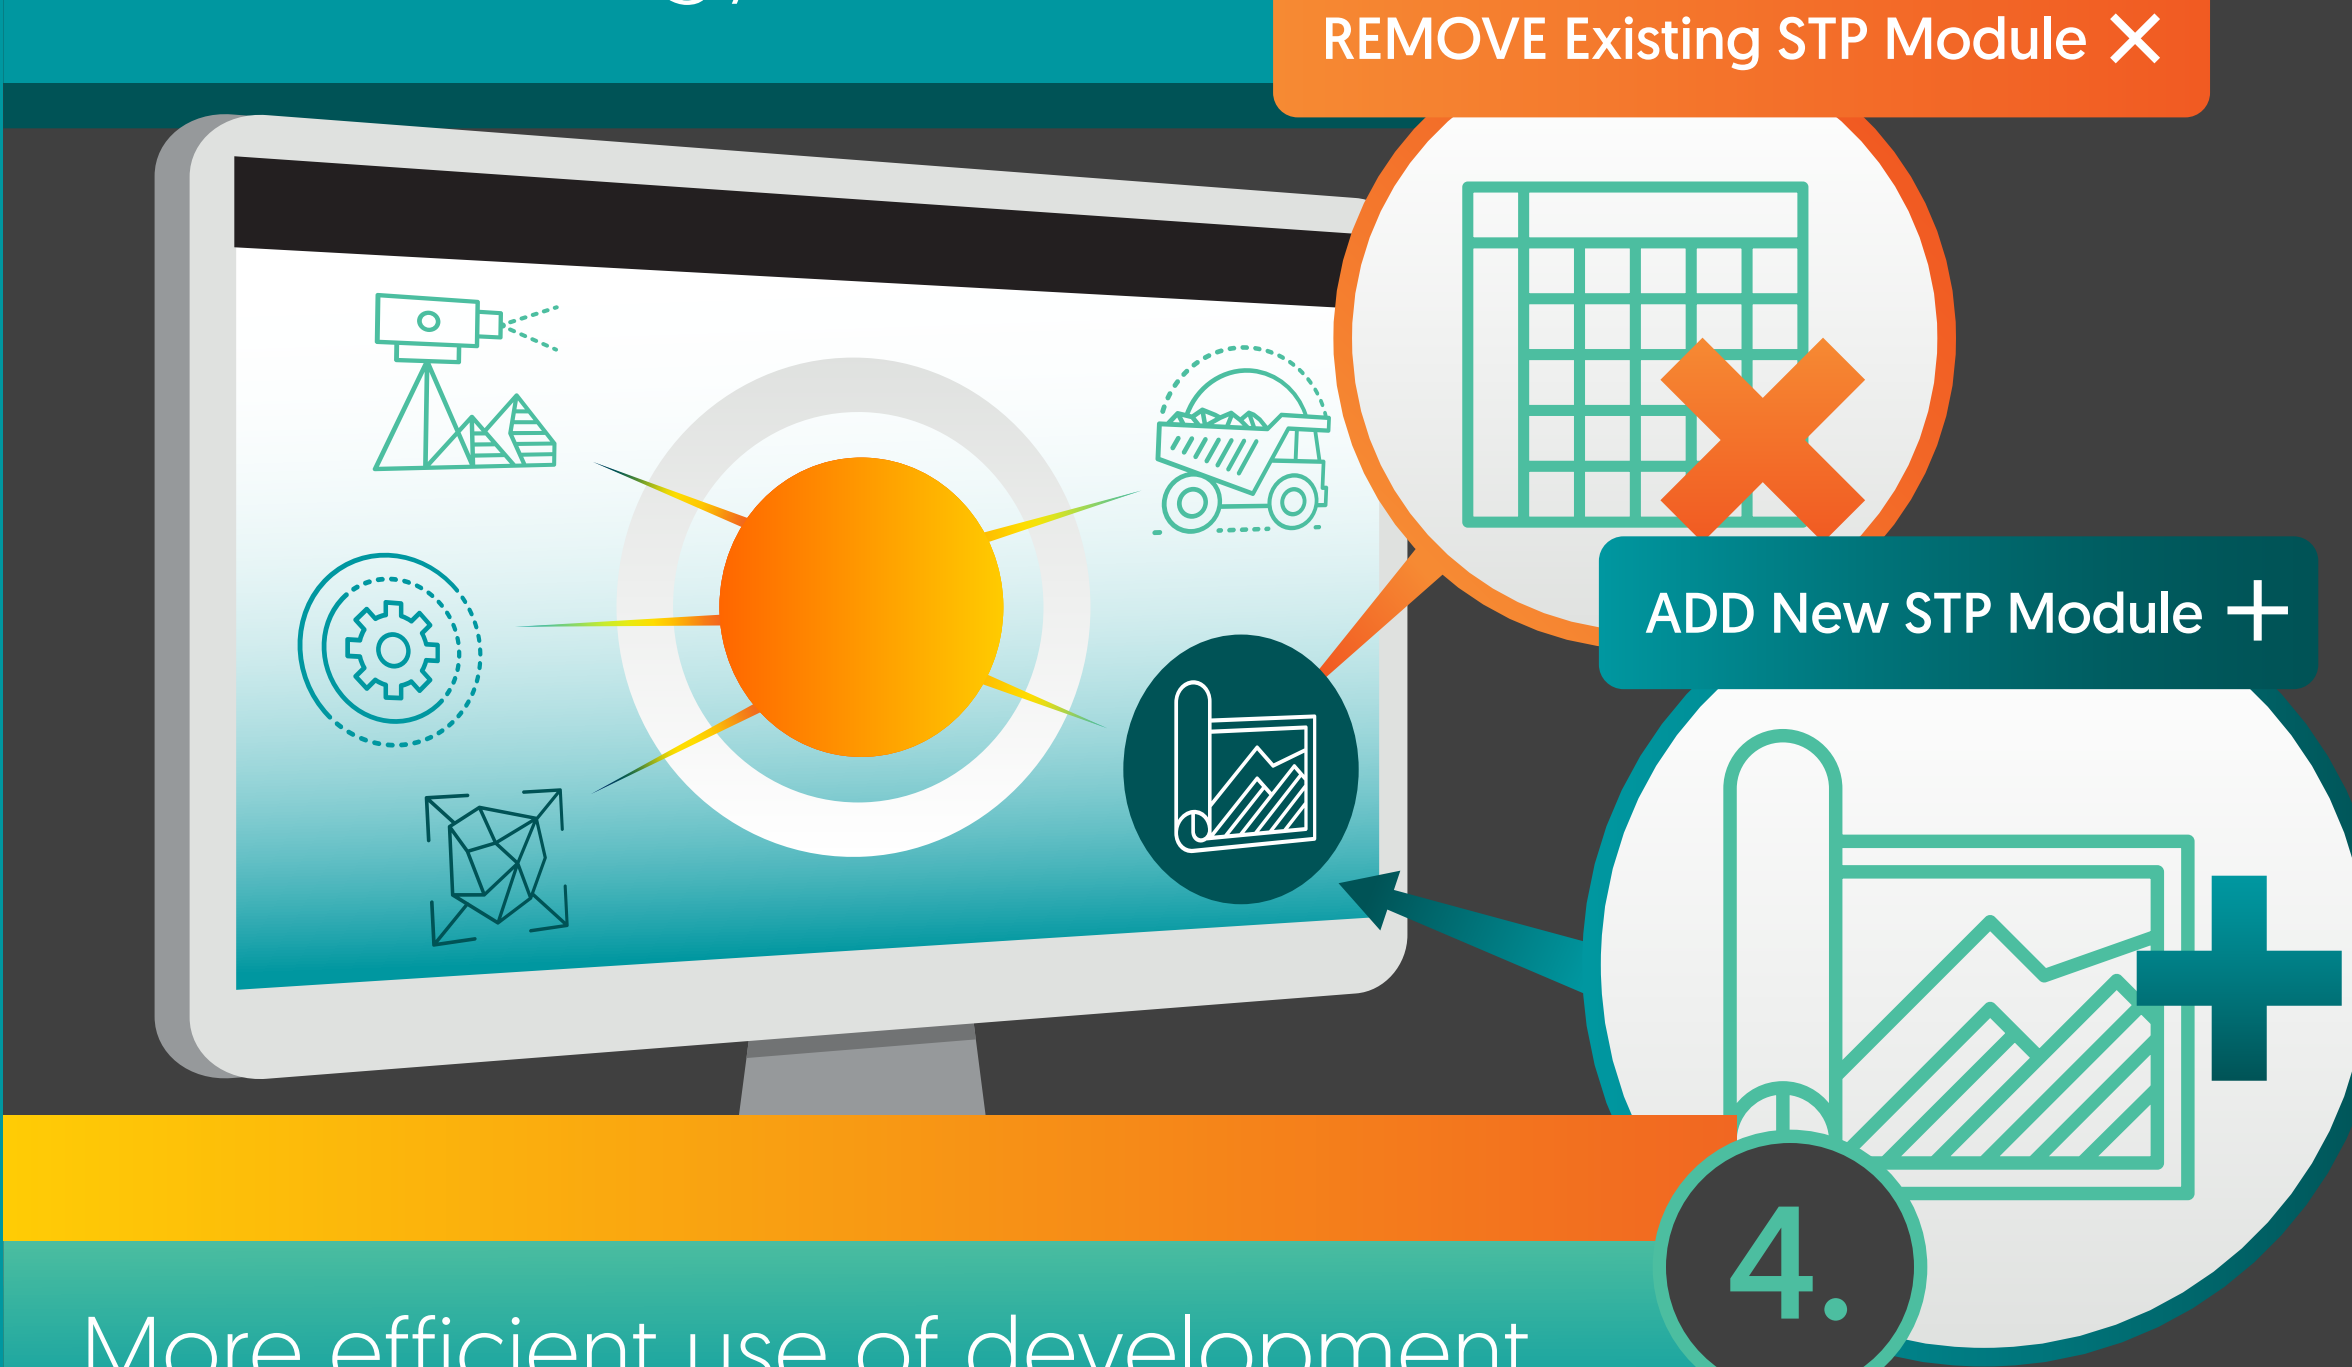

7. Enhanced security for your data to prevent unauthorized access and corruption

2. Increased product value and customer retention by providing continuous solutions for various data sources, thereby extending the life of their technology

4. More efficient use of development time and resources by technology providers because of the ongoing implementation of the latest technology by the data platform

6. Augmented data management ensures that high data quality exists throughout the complete lifecycle of the data, and data controls are implemented that support business objectives

As an Integration Partner with the SourceOne platform, you unlock your data's potential, making you a strategic technology partner for the mine site.

Are you ready to switch from being a task-specific technology provider to a strategic technology partner for the mining industry?

Become an Integration Partner for the SourceOne platform.
